

Me Growing Up

When I was a child I love to play hide and seek
In my teens I wonder why grown-ups are so fond of money and meat
At university I admire a professor whose knowledge is deep and wide
Befriending me he confides that he questions and thinks timid and wild
As I turn to take up business for bounty wealth for life
I became a slave working busily day and night

When I was a child I love candies and things sweet
In my teens I wonder why girls are so elegant and hard to meet
I dropped out of university my parents showed love and understanding
For three years I drifted from odd jobs to dish washing
I met this caring kind old man who listened to my story
He advised that life is about striving to achieve and be happy

When I was a child I love to be with many other kids
At school we together learn and play for days and weeks
In university I discovered that friends are more important than knowledge
Then I got married and wife and I brought up a family
I worked hard and contributing to society and earned my dignity
Friends and family care and love in our harmonious community
