

Sakura in Taiwan

The Formosan Aboriginal Cultural Village Tai Chung 2017 March 8

台中 九族文化村

The cherry blossoms came one week late

We were lucky to catch it

Blossoming trees filled the huge park

However, I missed the Sakura Street

I did not read the guide map properly

Still, some good views of the blooming pink flowers

Not the best. But given it's an iPhone and a dull sky, I would give the shots a "pass"

There was heavy downpour.

I spent time shooting while protecting and constantly wiping my cell phone

of Japan

An aboriginal touch too

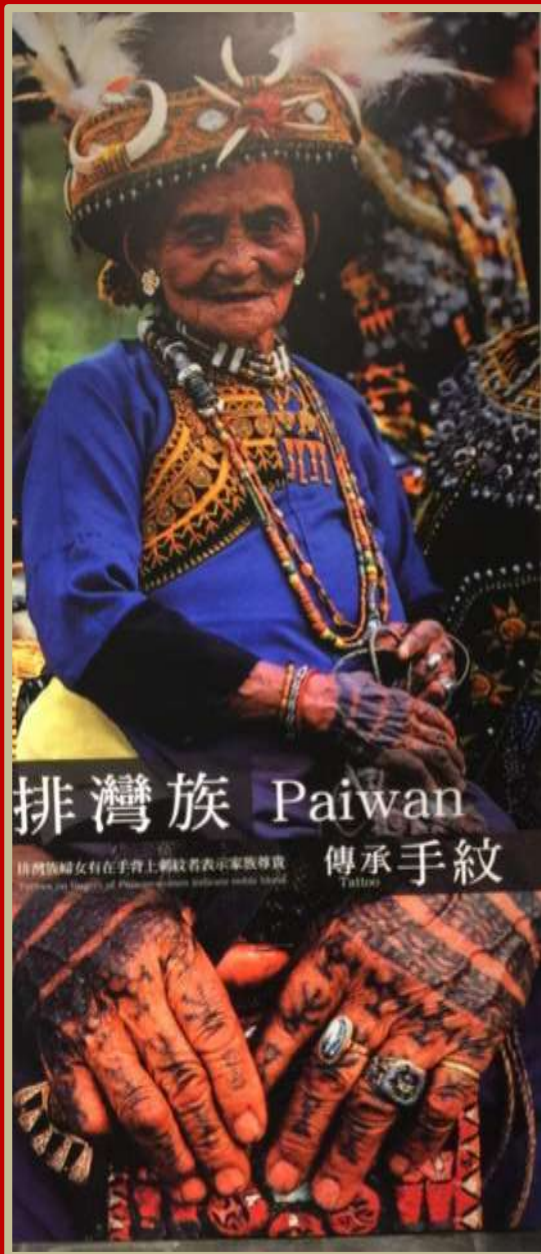

We also checked out the indigenous people's culture

.....took memento shots

John and I enjoyed our trip very much

Thanks for coming to this cultural park with us

Ciao
